Potential Evidence in Child Custody Cases

“Evidence” can be testimonial (from you or others), documentary (e.g., report cards, medical records) or tangible (e.g., photographs, child’s arts and crafts masterpieces, trophies, collections, merit badges).

- photographs of child
- report cards, teacher evaluations
- immunization, medical records
- evidence of hobbies, interests and activities
- membership in scouts, clubs, etc.
- evidence of summer camp activities
- evidence of involvement with extended family
- evidence of involvement with sports
- evidence of religious upbringing

Think about what is out there and run it by me.

This list is by no means exhaustive. If you think of anything else that might be illustrative of how well your child is doing in your care, please let me know.

Your responses are to assist me in preparing your case and will be kept strictly confidential.

Very truly yours,

/s/ Gregory R. Barison
